Understanding the Evolving Office

While many of us moved to a remote working situation thanks to the pandemic, recent surveys (Stanford) show that many employees are asking for the flexibility of a hybrid working situation - the ability to go into an office for a few days a week and stay home the others.

Work from Anywhere Strategy

The right workplace technologies will be crucial across sectors to help organizations ensure health, safety, security, and data privacy in the workplace. But, as a recent McKinsey report showed that 85% of companies have accelerated digitization, but that means implementing best-of-breed solutions will be key, boosting safety and security while also delivering a streamlined end-to-end experience.

Employee Engagement & Well-being

The focus on employee health and wellness isn't anything new, and it's not going anywhere. Now more than ever, it's crucial for organizations to focus on this area. Again, people's safety, physical and mental health, and overall happiness will need to come first.
